DEVOTIONAL EXCERPT

James encourages us to say, "If it is the Lord's will, we will live and do this or that" (4:15). We're to plan not with a presumptuous mindset, thinking we know everything and have control over our life, but from a position of submission to God's sovereignty and wisdom.

After all, we "do not even know what will happen tomorrow." In our humanness, we're helpless and weak, like "a mist that appears... and then vanishes" (v.14).

Only God has authority and power over everything in our lives; we don't. Through the Scriptures and the people, resources and circumstances He allows each day, He guides us to live in submission to His will and ways. Our plans aren't to come from following ourselves but from following Him.

"If it is the Lord's will, we will live and do this or that."
James 4:15
